PREFACE

The interest in and need for more detailed data for economic units of varying size continues to grow. Data at the micro-level for enterprises have greatly expanded, especially with the development experienced in the fields of accountancy and finance. The valuable efforts of economists in the area of macro-economic data have continued at a steady-to-increasing pace for the past several years. Regional and state economic data have been judged useful by the decision-making units of government agencies and, accordingly, we have seen an increased demand for such information, as well as expansion of the availability of data series at the state and county levels.

The Bureau of Economic and Business Research attempts with this new publication, Illinois Economic Statistics, to provide extensive economic data on the State which we hope will prove useful. As a land-grant university, the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign has endeavored to serve the state effectively through its teaching, research, and public service functions. We offer the 1981 desk book to the people of Illinois, as partial fulfillment of our goal of service.

As Dean of the College of Commerce and Business Administration, I am very pleased to introduce this new data book and to recognize the efforts of the Bureau of Economic and Business Research to serve the public. The compilation of this new desk book, along with its companion book, Illinois Economic Outlook 1982, required a major commitment of time and a careful coordination of effort. We hope you will find it useful and continue to call on the resources of the College for business information.

V. K. Zimmerman
Dean

INTRODUCTION

The Bureau of Economic and Business Research of the University of Illinois has long been a major contributor to the collection and presentation of economic statistics concerning the State of Illinois. In the 1940s and 1950s, when statistics were not systematically prepared for the State, the Bureau filled this gap by collecting a wide variety of information concerning the State and local area economies and presenting these data in the Illinois Business Review. Once embarked on this course of service, which has been welcomed by the business and government segments of the State, we have continually expanded our activities in this sphere. A major effort along these lines, the Illinois Economic Abstract, was published under the direction of Professor Ruth A. Birdzell in 1977.

At this time we offer the 1981 edition of Illinois Economic Statistics. This publication not only provides the user with specific data series at the county level, but it has been designed to present a broad overview of the performance of the Illinois economy. The book covers fourteen categories of information including population, personal income, transfer payments, construction, banking activity, agricultural production, manufacturing and energy resources.

Population is presented by counties for three selected years, up to 1979. Employment data, including labor force and unemployment rate, are given for each county and construction statistics are also provided. Extensive data is presented for personal income at the county level, including specific details about industry breakdown. These data can then be used to elicit additional information such as the basis of economic activity. Transfer income and farm income data, also provided, give further insight into the sources of income and the nature of economic behavior. In the area of banking, we provide detailed statistics about the nature of banks and the size distribution of accounts. County statistics about production levels of additional basic industries, including farming and energy resources, are presented. And, finally the Illinois economic picture is completed with data about retail sales and price level indicators.

In publishing this deskbook we have striven to assemble pertinent information in an easy-to-use format so that it can be used as a handy reference by individuals and organizations interested in evaluating economic activity in Illinois. Some areas have been excluded in the interest of size and convenience; for example, climate; some elements of population, agriculture, and mining; education; and trade. Pertinent data in these areas can be found in the Illinois Economic Abstract (mentioned above), available from the Bureau. We would welcome comment about the data contained in this book so that we may continue to serve the economic needs of the State of Illinois in the most meaningful way.

1/Includes repair and operation of capital items; depreciation, interest, rent, and taxes; and other miscellaneous expenses.

2/Conceptually, corporate farm income is excluded, and thus subtracted, from total net income of all farms in deriving the net income of farm proprietors. However, due to the statistical adjustment as well as to the method used in estimating corporate farm income at the state level, positive adjustments to counties with no corporate farms may occur.

3/Indicates data not available.
